In terms of a relationship, commitment is the ultimate task for any human being to maintain. This obligation involves change. An individual adding a new responsibility to their routine, where there are guidelines to follow that will build the relationship. Commitment is similar to a marriage. The members have to work extensively over time for it to grow and manage challenges that may come. Like God and the church, we take on a new identity when we commit to anything or anyone. In a marriage, there are decisions to be made that might be good for one but not right for the other. This activity is something that occurs in any commitment, and there will be other decisions that will arise in the future.

Prayer: Lord Jesus, help me to stay in commitment to you and the other relationships that I have responsibility for. Thank you God. Amen.
