Devotion is devoting time to God that requires discipline on the part of the believer. When is devotional time? It could be anytime throughout the day or at night. This time may consist of praying, bible reading and studying, singing, meditation, expression, praising and worshipping, or a combination. The opportunity to use these attributes should be our priority to fellowship with the Lord. This activity builds character.

The responsibility of the believer is to maintain devotion daily. The location and time are significant because it creates a foundation between you and God. The more time we make ourselves available to the Lord, the stronger the bond becomes.

The challenge for any believer is life obstacles and world temptations that come our way. These hurdles would attempt to prohibit us from staying on course. The adversary will aim to steal away the time that you have set aside for devotion. We must have the determination to conquer these situations in the name of Jesus when it arises. As we live daily, the presence of the Lord will be with us. Either would draw unbelievers to God, or they will keep away from you.

Devotion in the night is where the physical challenge begins. Our flesh reacts in such a negative fashion and eventually goes into slumber mode. However, if the body is physically tired, rest first. Then you will have strength later.
