Lies. The opposite of the truth. This verbal practice can be very destructive towards any person. Why would anyone tell a lie against somebody else? Envy. A liar in that state is either envious of what an individual has or what the individual knows. For example, the father of lies, in this case, is the devil. There are three steps this serpent and his people that he controls uses against the pursuant. The first is the look. His motive is to disconnect the believer from God. In our society today, the enemy is at work against the believers. He views the various areas where you reside daily. These places may be at work, home, church, events, and even during commute. The next is to listen. The enemy will find other people that carry similar feelings to oppose the victim. The final step is to speak against the person. The bigger the lie, the more severe the drama will be for the receiver.

Lies and hate go together. For a person to create a story against someone who did nothing wrong takes a lot of animosities.

Prayer: Dear God, help me not to tell a lie on anyone or cover up anything. Thank you God.
