Righteousness is a person that goes about doing right toward others and themselves in the eyes of God. How we treat others will most likely determine what to expect in return from society. Therefore, the decision is up to us.

For believers, if we practice right doing daily, it will become easier to do this more often. This activity will naturally receive a positive response.

Righteousness will obtain favor with God in heaven. Sometimes, not all people we cross paths with will be fond of this character. There will be people that disapprove of this behavior and rebel against it.

Righteousness will not always bring good results. There will be situations that may seem dangerous for such a person that regularly practice these methods. However, if we trust what we are doing is the right way to live, God will take care of those who oppose it.

Righteousness, for believers, requires us to give thanks to God. He is the one that provides strength to enable the righteous to do right to others. By this, we know God will meet the needs and reward us with good things.

Righteousness first originated from God. Then through His Son, Jesus Christ, enable sinners to receive salvation to become believers.

Righteousness paves the way for believers to have the opportunity to live the same way, doing right.

Prayer: Righteous God, help me to live and do right in your sight. Thank you God. Amen.
