

Outer Growth - Ten Commandments 2

Why is the Ten commandments in this specific order?

Only God knows why they are in that order. Below are key points as to maybe why ranked that way.

Note: Each comment below each commandment is just an opinion and not concrete facts derived from any current research or study.

1. God

God is either thought of good or bad, speak to and about good or bad, or prayed to daily than any other.

2. Idols

Idols are of wood and stone, material things of this world, or people of admiration that we spend most of our valuable time daily with than God.

3. God's name

God's name is either used in profanity or situations that are negative.

4. Sabbath

Sabbath is a day God made for people to honor Him but misunderstand.

5. Parents

Every born child comes from a mother and father. However, how many children that have or know of their parents honor them?

6. Murder

Every day at least one life is gone either by hate, drugs, or self-infliction.

7. Adultery

Daily, at least one marriage partner is either fantasizing, premeditating, flirting, fornicating, or engaging in sexual activity with another person.

8. Theft

Regularly, someone is either stealing or cheating another person.

9. Lying

Day to day, someone is either telling untruths, a fib, falsify, or fabricate to another.

10. Coveting

Often someone is looking at another on what they have or what they do and desires the same.

Why are the Ten Commandments in that specific order? There is no real concrete evidence from the bible as to why the Ten Commandments are in that particular order. However, in this order, it sends a message to all believers about what God expects from us. The first four commandments are about God because He is the head that we must love and respect at all times. The fifth commandment is about our parents. We must honor them as it states to receive the blessing of God. The final five commandments are respectful toward others. Our conduct around them will determine if we truly love God or not.

Prayer: Holy Father, help me to honor the ten commandments. Thank you God. Amen.
