Heaven is a large open space that hovers over the earth where God or the gods live with the good people that are believed to go after they die. According to the dictionary, this definition of future paradise does not describe the place itself but only the possibility of where it may be. The explanation is no living human being can go to heaven alive. However, according to the Bible, Enoch is the only one that God took without him experiencing death. If this is the case, then requirements do involve God for a person to enter heaven.

The Bible states that heaven is a home that God created at the very beginning when he created the earth. Previously, we knew it was called a firmament. This place mentions the outermost parts of heaven which is an indication that it is extreme. A future paradise that contains light and water that shines and rains respectively upon the earth. Similar to a home in heaven, it resides in a holy city made of pure gold with the building walls made of jasper and stones such as sapphire, chalcedony, emerald, sardonyx, and other precious stones along with pearls as well.

There will be no night in heaven, only day. These treasures in heaven will be assessed by God as to what we will receive when we get there. What we do on earth will be determined by what we receive in heaven.

Heaven is a place of eternity. This place is also known as a holy habitation. Therefore only the pure, clean, holy-oriented people will be eligible for heaven. A permanent place where the people of God will rule and reign with Him forever. The ones that do the will of God will put themselves in the position to enter the kingdom of heaven.

Heaven is a place that God's angels actively dwell. Angels are seriously working on behalf of the people of God assisting them according to the assignment given by God Himself in heaven. Whether the angels are in heaven or on earth, the focus is to carry out the assignment sanctioned by God to enable the people to overcome the challenges they may face in their daily lives.

Heaven is about helping vessels reach the others. The only people God can manifest Himself to are clean vessels. A contaminated one will not make any progress, only regress and will be ineffective.

Heaven is so great that God can see everything that goes on in the earth. No human flesh can hide from God their sins because He understands the heart of every living creature He made. To plan against God will only lead to ruin.

To be qualified to go to heaven comes down to having your name written down in the book of life. The book of life contains the names of people that are eligible for heaven. If God does not see the name that means doom and destruction for the absent names. Are you heaven-bound today?
